

INTRODUCING: DRONEPORT TEXAS, LLC

Mr. David Hook resides in Windcrest and is the owner of Droneport Texas, LLC which was founded four years ago. The company is an off-shoot of its sister company Planehook Aviation Services, LLC. While Planehook deals with aviation training development and aviation security consulting, unmanned aviation was just enough out of Planehook's wheelhouse to need a completely separate business entity to support it. So, in May 2017, Droneport Texas was launched.

Droneport Texas was formed in Windcrest for two reasons. First, it operates in the same physical space as Planehook Aviation Services and shares costs with its sister company. Second, Windcrest is a business-friendly community, according to Mr. Hook. The Windcrest City Staff is responsive to the needs of Droneport Texas and provides timely services ranging from simplified annual business licensing to free notary services. Having been a serial entrepreneur for over 17 years, Mr. Hook sees his location in Windcrest as an advantage.

Drones are starting to change how some companies do business. Drones are being used to gather information on inspection of structures like wind turbines, bridges, analyzing farmland from the sky, capturing video footage, providing security as well as just being an enjoyable hobby.

How hard is it to fly a drone? Mr. Hook is an excellent teacher and teaches the basics of drone flying. It is fun and exciting and will get people new to the field hooked!
